Non-Blockading Nations Indignant Beeause They Were Not Consulted-The State Department Disclaims All Responsibility for the Appointment.

WASHINGTON, May 20 .- The State De partment has felt obliged to explain to the representatives in Washington of the nonblockading European nations having claims against Venezuela that the United States Government was not responsible for the selection of Wayne MacVeagh as the agent of the non-blockading nations before The Hague tribunal in the arbitration of the uestion involved in the contention of England, Germany and Italy that they are entitled to have their claims paid by Venezuela before any other Government gets a

The so-called peace Powers of Europe have indignantly asserted that they had nothing to do with Mr. MacVeagh's selection and were not even consulted in the matter This and other reasons are given by them for declining to become parties to the proceeding before The Hague court. A merry diplomatic row is on, which threatens to em barrass the arbitration proceedings.

According to the explanations made by the State Department to the irritated diplomats, Mr. MacVeagh was regarded the Department as the selection of Venezuela, whose position in the arbitration is similar to that of the nations which did not engage in the blockade. It was the understanding of the Department, according to this explanation, that the European non-blockading Powers had agreed accept Mr. MacVeagh as their repre sentative at The Hague, and the Depart ment therefore concurred in this supposed arangement. The assertion now that the representatives of the European peace Powers were not consulted concern ing the selection of Mr. MacVeagh caused astonishment at the State Department which has endeavored to ascertain how the misunderstanding occurred.

The French, Belgian and Dutch govern-ments, or, rather, their representatives in Washington, were particularly incensed over heir failure to be consulted in the prepa ration of The Hague protocols arranged by the British and Italian Ambassadors, the German Minister and H. W. Bowen, Venezuela's special envoy. They assert that they did not see the protocols until they were presented to them by Mr. Bowen, with a were presented to them by Mr. Bowen, with a request that they sign an adherence to the terms contained therein. They declare, also, that it was then that they first knew that Mr. MacVeagh was expected to represent their governments. They maintain that they have no personal objection to Mr. MacVeagh, but deny the right of Mr. Bowen or anybody else to select himas their agent without consultation with them.

From present prospects, the United States, Mexico and Venezuela will appear jointly at The Hague in opposition to the claim of England, Germany and Italy to preferential treatment, while France, Belgium, Holland, Spain and Sweden and preferential treatment, while France, Belgium, Holland, Spain and Sweden and Norway, or some of them, may appear separately in opposition also to the British-German-Italian contention, but upon different grounds, thus causing confusion, and, it is held, weakening the attitude of the process, pations by presenting a divided eace nations by presenting a divided

The State Department has also repudiated responsibility for the publication at the Government Printing Office of the blue book, containing the correspondence in the book, containing the correspondence in the Venezuelan peace negotiations between Herbert W. Bowen, the Special Envoy of Venezuela, and Sir Michael H. Herbert, the British Ambassador, Signor Mayor des Planches, the Italian Ambassador; Baron von Sternburg, the German Minister, and Count Quadt, German Chargé d'Affaires. Mr. Bowen, who is also the United States Minister to Venezuela, presend the book and secured its publication.

pared the book and secured its publication at the Government Printing Office.

When the blue book appeared this month, just at the time of Mr. Bowen's departure from Washington, representatives of the blockading Powers expressed irritation over the manner in which Mr. Bowen had as Ambassador Early in July. ver the manner in which Mr. Bowen had serted personal explanations in the form footnotes. One of these was regarded by the diplomatic critics as particularly objectionable. It was attached to a communication from Mr. Bowen to Sir Michael Herbert, accepting the conditions upon which Great Britain would raise the blockde of Venezuelan ports, and read as follows: Note—I accepted the British conditions in order to get Great Britain out of the alliance, or to obtain proof that she could not get out without Germany's consent. Count Quadt informed Sir Michael H. Herbert and myself that the alliance could not be broken, as an agreement had been made by their respective Governments.

H. W. B. Objection to this and other footnotes was made on the ground that their insertion was contrary to practice, the rule being that diplomatic correspondence should speak for itself and that personal explanations or comments not seen by all the other parties to the correspondence were de-

But the principal complaint of the European diplomats was that the United States Government had apparently approved the publication by having it printed at the Government Printing Office. Inquiries brought out the repudiation of responsibility by the State Department. In fairness to Mr. Bowen it should be said that he obtained authority to have the Venezuelan correspondence printed at the Government Printing Office, and in fairness to the State Department it should be ess to the State Department it should be of reading the manuscript of the blue book before publication. The Department has expressed regret that anything which appeared in a volume bearing the imprint of a United States Government office should ave given offence to representatives of oreign Governments.

Another annotation of Mr. Bowen's was Another annotation of Mr. Bowel's was that two documents contained in the blue book "prove that the German Government wanted cash or a sufficient guaranty—not both." To this he added: "It ultimately demanded both, and both had to be given in order to get the blocked wised." order to get the blockade raised.

One other note caused irritation. This was attached to a statement from Mr. Bowen to the allies explaining his objections to giving them preferential treatment. It This was dictated to Italian and British Ambassadors and to the German Minister late at night, after a long discussion. They took it down in writing, so as to cable it to respective Governments The idea of being placed before the world position of amanuenses to the breezy young American envoy was too much for the dignity of European diplomats.

THE PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY. RICH LOSES DIVORCE SUIT Election of a Mederator Takes Place This

Afterno Los Angeles, Cal., May 20.-Over a hundred carloads of delegates and friends arrived to-day to take part in the 115th General Presbyterian Assembly. The chief delegations that came in to-day were from Boston, Philadelphia, New York, Pittsburg and Chicago.

Chief in interest among the questions discussed by the commissioners to-day is that of the election of a moderator for the ensuing year. The election takes place to-morrow afternoon, when a successor to the Rev. Henry Van Dyke will be chosen. A strong sentiment has developed for the election of a pastor of a Western church. Among the candidates mentioned are Dr. Robert F. Coyle of Denver, Dr. W. H. Roberts of Philadelphia, Clerk of Assembly; the Rev. C. W. Matter of China and Dr. Schley Schaff of Cincinnati. This afternoon a "Conference of Missions" was held at the woman's clubhouse. The debate was on "Forward Movement," d was conducted by Dr. John Patterson Addresses were made by David McCon-Addresses were made by David McConaughey, special secretary of "Forward Movement"; Miss Carolin B. Sharp, Mrs. P. D. Brown and Miss Jennie Partridge. Dr. A. W. Halsey, corresponding secretary, also made a short talk. Following this meeting Charles W. Hand, treasurer of the Foreign Missions Board, talked upon "The Treasurer's Side of It," and the Rev. David G. Monford of Pueblo, Col., upon "The Church's Side of It." To-night there was a great conference on foreign missions, with a great conference on foreign missions, with addresses by the Rev. MOODY MERRILL REQUISITION.

Son of the Accused Man Opposes the Signing of the Papers by Gov. Bates.

Boston, May 20.-Winthrop Merrill, son of Moody Merrill, in jail in New York, opposed to-day the application for the requisition papers which the District Attorney and Boston police authorities desire Gov. Bates to sign, asking Gov. Odell of New York to turn Moody Merrill over to the Boston police, so that he may be prose-

Boston police, so that he may be prosecuted here on an indictment warrant alleging the embezzlement of $19,000 from Mrs. Sarah Cohen of Roxbury.

He objects to the Governor's approval of the requisition papers chiefly because it is alleged that they are neither complete nor definite in their allegations. If Gov. Bates signs the papers they will be forwarded to Gov. Odell at Albany, and there another contest—the real one—will take another contest—the real one—will take place. It will probably be set up there that the criminal process is simply a cover for a civil process, and if that position can be maintained the chances are that Gov. Odell will refuse to honor the requisition.

THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. David Metzger Have the Knot Retled After Fifty Years.

The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. David Metzger of 13 East Seventyfourth street was celebrated last night in the large ballroom at Delmonico's. The marriage knot was retied by the Rev. ACTRESS STILL MRS. RICH, IN SPITE OF BOTH OF THEM.

And They Go on Living in the Same House, as Lovers Once but Strangers Now -Lawyer for Corespondent Stratton

Among Those Who Addressed the Jury. Honors are easy so far as court proseedings are concerned in the family row of the Riches.

Nancy Rich, who was the actress Annie Summerville of Dixey's "Adonis" company and who lost her suit for separation from her husband, William L. Rich on Tuesday. won yesterday before Justice Scott of the Supreme Court in her husband's counter suit for absolute divorce. The jury was out an hour before agreeing that there was not sufficient evidence to show that Mrs. Rich had been guilty of adultery with Frank Stratton, the boyish corespondent. Husband and wife are still living in the same house on East Seventy-first street, but in different parts They don't speak. That is, they haven't been speaking. The most amused looking person in the court room early in the day was Edward Chapman, the comedian, Mrs. Rich's former husband, and father of her daughter, Edna. He said that he had to come downtown anyway, and thought he'd drop in just for a minute to see how his former wife looked. There were no greetings. Mrs. Rich got a divorce from Chapman about fifteen years ago.

When the case was resumed in the morning counsel for the husband called a few together in the Adirondack woods and on Lake Placid. But they added nothing material to the evidence, and there were no more kissing or hugging stories. That should be mentioned to relieve the minds of a score of women and some young men, wearing openwork hose, who went to court out of curiosity but were ordered out of the room by Justice Scott, who said that the day was too hot for an unnecessary

Both Mrs. Rich and Stratton testified in their own defence and denied that they had ever kissed. Stratton said that while he was never engaged to the daughter, Edna Chapman, it was to see her that he went to the Rich home.

Mrs. Rich said that she was born in England; that her maiden name was Annie Shaw; that she went on the stage when she was 13 years old and that her stage name was 13 years old and that her stage name was Annie Summerville. Stratton, she said, was 24 years old. She refused to tell her own age, and said that it was enough for the jury to know that she was the mother of a daughter 20 years old, whom Stratton used to call to see.

Stratton testified that since he was graduated at Princeton, he had been employed in the banking house of Brown Bros.

When asked by what title he addressed Mrs. Rich. Stratton replied:

when asked by what the he addressed Mrs. Rich, Stratton replied:

"I called her the Countess and she called me the Baron. I asked Mr. Rich if he didn't think 'Countess' was a good name for his wife, and he said that he didn't, that she ought to be called the 'Duchess of Carleton Terrace.' " [She was the Duchess in "Address"]. Job Hedges, counsel for Stratton, availed himself of the opportunity offered by the recent amendment of the divorce law to the Jury in behalf of the corespondent.

He said that he had never heard before that walking up a mountain trail consti-tuted adultery.

After the verdict Mrs. Rich, Miss Edna,

Stratton and a crowd of young men friends left the Court House just in time to be drenched by the downpour of rain.

The husband waited and got to the Seventy-first street house with a dry skin, a sandwich is not ordered, and to take it away again without having received pay herefor, is not serving in good faith a meal with a drink. Gen. Greene went to North Beach last Sunday and Capt. Piper to Coney Island. The letter contains this account of what GREENE WANTS TO TELL HIM HE'S BACK ON THE FORCE.

At North Beach on Sunday last a plate containing a small piece of bread was placed on each table whether empty or occupied, and remained there while drinks were being served, and there was no other pretence of serving a meal. At Coney Island the supply of food was exhausted at one hotel and none could be furnished when demanded, although drinks continued to be served without restriction. These are plain violations of the law.

The letter concludes with instructions The letter concludes with instructions to the captains to see that the law "as thus judicially interpreted" is enforced, and that the only persons who gets drinks on Sunday are "guests of the hotel as defined in the law, who actually order and obtain in good faith a meal therein, at the hours when meals are regularly served therein." when meals are regularly served therein.

COULDN'T FREE HIS PRISONERS

INSPECTOR SMITH IS CHASED FROM COURT TO COURT.

He Arrested 65 Men on Warrants for Three, and Neither Justice Wyatt, Who Issued It, Nor the Magistrates Would Consider the Cases-Get Off at Last.

Inspector Smith was kept busy yesterday striving to induce some Magistrate to dismiss all but three of the prisoners arrested on Tuesday afternoon in the poolroom at 16 Sixth avenue. Justice Wyatt, at Special Sessions, refused to allow the men to be arraigned before him, on the ground that they were not the persons for whose arrest he had issued John Doe and Richard Roe warrants.

John Doe and Richard Roe warrants.

Inspector Smith hurried to see Magistrate Deuel, in the Tombs police court. He also declined to have anything to do with the prisoners. The District Attorney's office was then appealed to, and Assistant District Attorney Pechner took charge of the situation. He caused the policemen who made the arrest to identify Thomas Stewart, Joseph Thomas and James A. Smith as three employees of the policom for whom the warrants were issued. These men were taken before Justice Wyatt, who held them under $500 bonds each for examination on Saturday morning. Justice amination on Saturday morning. Justice Wyatt persisted in his refusal to have anything to do with the remaining sixty-two prisoners. He suggested that Magistrate Mayo, in the Jefferson Market police court, be appealed to.

The sixty-two prisoners were accordingly

The sixty-two prisoners were accordingly transferred from the Criminal Courts Building to Jefferson Market, but Magistrate Mayo refused to dispose of the cases, on the ground that the raid was made on warrants issued by Justice Wyatt and for the further reason that the police had no charges to make against any of the men held in to make against any of the men held in custody.

Inspector Smith and Mr. Pechner went back to the Criminal Courts Building, leaving their prisoners in a room at the Jefferson Market court. They consulted Justice Wyatt and Magistrate Deuel again, with the same result. At last Mr. Pechner went to the District Attorney's office, vowing that he would begin mandamus proceedings to compel Magistrate Mayo to act.

compel Magistrate Mayo to act.
Meanwhile, Magistrates Mayo and Deuel had a long conversation over the telephone.
They agreed that it was not proper to ask them to deal with the raid prisoners, but that as an act of humanity Magistrate Mayo should dismiss the captives, many of whom had been confined since 4 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon. Magistrate Mayo accordingly ordered their release on the ground of humanity.
